Osuna

Osuna, nestled between the Sierra Sur and the Sevillian countryside, enjoys the charm of a rural environment and possesses a history and legacy that turned it into a Villa Ducal, reflection of the nobility and power of its nobles.

The city has kept to perfection its old quarter, where carved stone plays a leading role, along with its baroque palaces and churches and convents that house artistic treasures.

Likewise the city has remained true to its traditions and customs, cuisine and craftsmanship, but without getting stuck into the past, strengthening its tourism offer with modern hotels, transport and services.

All this in an incomparable setting, with beautiful natural spaces, where you can enjoy the richness of its fauna and flora and practice any sport.

Location

Osuna is located in the foothills of the Sierra Sur, on a hill. It is a town in the province of Seville of noble past and rich heritage.

Cross by paths, droveways and natural protected areas, it is ideal place for fans of active tourism. Its strategic location as crossroads between Seville, Córdoba, Granada and Málaga has made it, since ancient times, a land coveted by the different civilizations who settled there.

Osuna has a wonderful climate with pleasant temperatures. Its complete transport network provides quick and convenient transportation from anywhere in Spain. Seville and Málaga airports are just one hour drive away, while the A-92 highway that connects the south with the East of Spain passes through its municipal district.

and civic order are described in the “Osuna Bronzes”, a public compilation of Roman laws considered the most important remains preserved in the world.

The ruins of the Theatre and the Necropolis hipogea- a building carved in stone that covers a time-span ranging from the 7th century to the Visigoth era - still remain from this powerful civilization settled in this land of contrasts.

This time is seen as a transit period in which Osuna continued approaching the plain, just before Muslims settled and fortified the city. The Alcazaba and the Torre del Agua are just some remains of the over five-century-long Islamic domination that ended in 1240, when a large area of the Guadalquivir valley became part of

History

The origins of the pre-Roman Urso go back to the first millennium BC. Tartesians and Tudetans left beautiful examples of their art and culture as can be seen in the Iberian sculpture collection, to which both the Toro (Bull) and the “Osuna Reliefs” belong. These pieces of art are on display in the National Archaeological Museum and in the Torre del Agua, town’s Archaeological Museum.

During the Republican period of the Civil War that devastated Rome at the end of the first century BC, it was associated to Pompey’s side, in the Battle of Munda not many miles of our town, becoming in the last redoubt that withstood the advance of Caesar.. After the conquest, it received the status of Colonia Genitiva Iulia. Therefore it was allowed to mint coins. Legislation the Castilian king Fernando III. In 1264, after Andalusian Moorish withdrawal, Alfonso X donated the villa to the Order of Calatrava, who assumed the defence of the border.

But if there is a key date for Osuna and its history, this is 1464, and has a proper name: Pedro Girón. He, with Henry IV under his influence, offered to the Order of Calatrava the Sevillian town for Fuenteovejuna, in Córdoba, in order to build a stately estate to bequeath to their children. He created an entailed estate for Alfonso Téllez Girón, first Count of Ureña.

The desire to promote to higher positions within the Nobility forces this family to undertake a renovation of the urban landscape in order to turn Osuna into a monumental and, above all, noble town. From the beginning of the 16th century, the second Count of Ureña worked thoroughly to get this aim. Worthy of mention is also the work made by the fourth Count of Ureña, Juan Téllez Girón.

The cultural flowering of the town was also developed under the auspices of the Téllez Girón, founders of the University ursonense, building in which outstand the Graduation Hall -called the "Girona" and decorated with 16th century wall paintings-, the Chapel, with panel paintings by Hernando de Esturmio and the auditorium, covered with coffered ceiling in Mudejar-style.

Thus, Osuna became an important centre of meeting of scholars, artists and writers. While impressive buildings were built in the upper area within the walls, the people sought comfort in flatter areas. The suburbs were extended and the streets saturated with churches, convents and stately homes.

Religious buildings were not the only reflection of Osuna's prosperity, but also other impressive buildings such as baroque palaces built shortly after under the economic resurgence of the second half of the 18th century. Of particular relevance are the Palace of the Marquis of La Gomera and the Cilla del Cabildo in the Seville Cathedral -both situated in San Pedro street- .

An urban landscape that not only stands out for its spectacular nature but also for the consistency of its structure, in which even its old full of history stone alleys are located in their own special place.

Osuna Museums

The Collegiate Church

This Renaissance church replaced the old medieval parish and houses one of the most interesting collections of Baroque paintings. It is built in stone and has three portals among which stands out the one known as the Puerta del Sol, decorated with grotesques and medallions. Inside, the museum exhibits a carving by Juan de Mesa, 16th century valuable Flemish panels, interesting pieces of jewellery and a superb collection of paintings by Jose de Ribera (The Españaoleto).

The Collegiate museum is divided into 3 exhibition areas: the church itself, the Museum of Religious Art in the sacristy and the Chapel of the Sepulchre.

The Monastery of la Encarnación

The Monastery of la Encarnación -a former hospital rehabilitated by the Mercedary Order in 1626-, is home to the Museum of Religious Art. Its galleries are arranged around a patio decorated with splendid 18th century Sevillian tiles, drawing special attention to the main altar from 1724. It exhibits images such as the Christ of Mercy from 16th century, the Dolorosa by Francisco Meneses and a magnificent collection of the Infant Jesus from 17th century to 18th century.

Archaeological Museum

The Archaeological Museum Torre del Agua exhibits one of the richest examples of heritage and cultural legacy which the various civilizations who settled in Osuna left.

Located at the Torre del Agua -built by the Almohades in 12th century and restored by the Knights of Calatrava in 14th century-, the museum hosts ancient art replicas and originals which are symbols for the population: the "Toro de Osuna", an Iberian piece, and the "Osuna Bronzes", a compilation of Roman laws. In addition, you can admire a magnificent coin collection and medical supplies from the Roman era.

Osuna Museum

The Palace of the Brothers Arjona and Cubas, an 18th century building, housed the local Chamber of Agriculture for much of the last century. The visit begins in the cellar of the house palace, in which we can find several jars, whose purpose was to contain wine, oil and food like meat and fish. Continuing the visit, we will enjoy with permanent and temporary rooms on the ground floor such as: Rodriguez Jaldón Collection and Rodolfo Álvarez Santaló Collection. On the first floor we will find: Municipal Archive holdings, Nobility and Power, Ancient Photography Studio belongs to family Ruíz, Holdings of ancient University, Ledesma Printing, "El Bombo" Hat Shop and, The Ice and Fire Hall. ...

A Walk In Osuna

In Osuna monumental interest and heritage is by no means at odds with its attractive walking areas and outdoor gathering places.

The Carrera, main shopping street of the town, is considered the hub of Osuna life. Contact with Nature and tranquillity are assured in the Paseo de San Arcadio, a refurbished park and an ideal place for recreation. It is located opposite the Plaza de Toros (Bullring) -witness to the feats of great bullfighters- and the Arco de la Pastora —an arch belonging to the old door of Ecija, built in the late 18th century during the reign of Charles IV. On the other hand, the beautiful streets of Osuna have been the scene of films such as Callas Forever, directed by Franco Zeffirelli, and Carmen, by Vicente Aranda.

After the interesting tour, you can taste traditional dishes, recipes and new creations in any of the bars or restaurants within the area. All these establishments are concentrated in plazas and tree-lined avenues that serve as a focal point for young and old. Such is the case of the Plaza Mayor, in front of the City Hall, Plaza de la Duquesa, opposite the Archaeological Museum, Plazuela Salitre, Plaza de la Merced and Plaza Cervantes, dominated by the Arco de la Pastora. ...

Natural Heritage

Osuna extensive and rich natural landscapes conform, together with its vast cultural heritage, the personality and attractiveness of this town located in the heart of Seville´s countryside. From the triangular hill where it stands, we can see olive groves and mountain landscapes where mild temperatures reign throughout all the year. However, what really confers uniqueness to this stately town are their spaces and protected properties, a large part of its territory.

Osuna is a broad territory, as it has 387,8 km of livestock routes enabled for public use. This means that we can offer a wide range of paths and trails, giving visitors a cultural response at the same time that it means a recovery of historic places for the citizens of the municipality. We must highlight six trails:

THE GOMERA'S TRAIL

This space is a beautiful exponent of the Middle Subbetic Hills. It forms a scarped landscape on which the streams and rivers have excavated their courses. Nevertheless, the importance of this rough spot is, without doubt, its botanical richness and fauna, in a good state of conservation.

NECROPOLIS PATH

Following the Royal Cattle track from Estepa to Marchena, we find the Roman Theatre of Osuna, one of the few preserved in Spain. A bit further in this same cattle track, we find the spot known as "Las Cuevas", where there is an ancient necropolis of the Roman period. Roman Forum of the ancient Urso is part of a large stretch of this path, exactly the area locally known as "The Pool".

CORBONES RIVER'S TRAIL

Impressive marsh of the River Corbones has special interest water sports lovers. It is one of the few navigable marshes in Seville. In addition, to enjoy a day of contact with nature, visitors can relax and rest on the swamp shores, and appreciate its flora and fauna. River has a capacity of 74 cubic hectometers, in which you can test your abilities with the fishing rod, awaiting that some barbell, carp or blast back bite your hook.

POOLS TRAIL

It shines with its own light one of the protected areas of greater wealth in the entire municipality: the Endorheic area.

Its beautiful, shallow lakes are annually visited by different species of birds that stop in Osuna to rest on their migratory routes. Flamingos, geese, herons and the almost extinct white-headed duck find among reed beds, junks, and reed maces their particular paradise.

THE CALDERONA TRAIL

This is a spectacular track between olive trees and cereal fields. Its coastal scenery is magnificent, predominantly rich in salt cedars, and bathed by the local creeks Peinado and Salado. While we enjoy the route, we can observe magnificent samples of our rural architecture.

IPORA-LOS NARANJOS PATH

Reptiles and birds of prey in serious danger of extinction find refuge in this natural area limited by the White River and the Salinoso steam. It has very characteristic forms, fruit of the erosive processes, and a spectacular riparian forest. In the course of the river we must highlight the place known as the “River’s plain”, where you can see a forming meander. Foxes, hawks, nightingales, or redfish have chosen this spot as their habitat.

It is therefore a pleasure for the senses walking through those trails, and contemplate the magnitude of the landscape in all its splendor to see flora and fauna directly on our way. We have the possibility to meet with the locals and have a good time talking about the territory and its diversity. Similarly, these trails are a good tourist offer for hikers and nature lovers, because they enable all media to be in direct contact with the land, its people, and the natural features that make it unique.

Osuna, town of the cinema

Osuna, with its elegance, its monumental beauty and its artistic and natural patrimony have been used as a setting of films, short films and advertisements in many occasions. In this way, Franco Zeffirelli chose this place to film Callas Forever (2001), Vicente Aranda directed his particular Carmen (2002), Álvaro Begines for his short film Engaños (2002) or the Belgian television for its reality show De Andalusische Droom (2009).

The Colegiata and the surroundings of this monumental area, the spectacular San Pedro Street or the natural environment of El Coto Las Canteras have provided their beauty for these films, and they are offering, together with others, such as the centenary bullring of Osuna, to make other productions, highlighting specially the shooting of the fifth television season of the series Juego de Tronos (2014), a North-American overproduction with 18 millions of fans which has allowed a priceless dissemination and projection of Osuna in an international level. It can also be mentioned the fiction series produced entirely in Andalusia, which is set in the last years of the Roman Empire, called Año 400 (2008), in which our town was the crucial centre of the comedy.

Active Osuna

Osuna is a premier destination for active people and sports fans. The numerous facilities within the town give visitors an idea of how important these activities are for locals. There is a covered pavilion, basketball, volleyball, tennis, handball and paddle courts along with outdoor pools and even clay pigeon shooting practice grounds.

Within the municipal district there are important equestrian centres visited by renowned equestrian riders on the national scene. There you can make your first steps on the back of a horse or take a trip from the natural spaces in the area admiring its natural beauty.

Hikers and mountain bikers can enjoy preset itineraries around Osuna, standing out the Route of Natural Reserve and Osuna lakes and Cañada Real de Ronda Route, both close to the Endorheic Area.

The Pantano Río Corbones is a prime location for fishing. There you can also practice any water sports. On the other hand, those who prefer hunting can contact with the local sports club that organized hunts in any of the more than 70 existing federal game preserves.

Motor is a must in Osuna, where it is located the Motocross Circuit "El Calvario" which hosts every year important events such as Spain Championship and the International Open.

Festivals

If there is a festival that stands out for its relevance in Osuna that is the Holy Week celebration, declared in 1999 Festival of National Tourist Interest in Andalusia for its historical and artistic value.

The procession through the streets of this monumental Villa, decorated for the occasion, displays in all its splendour the valuable imagery consisting of carvings of great value.

Osuna patron saint festivals are widely celebrated by all the locals. The image of San Arcadio is taken in procession from the chapel every January 12. Locals walk through the main streets of the town with it as well as taste the typical "Gachas de Santo".

Osuna's patron saint, Virgen de la Consolación -a 16th century image brought from England by the fourth Count of Ureña to save it from the pillaging of Henry VIII's reformation- received all the honours in September. A procession, named after the saint and consisting of a pilgrimage to the area known as "El Calvario", is also celebrated.

Bullfights are the protagonists of the May Fair which was declared a Festival of Tourist Interest in Andalusia since 2008. It has been holding for over two hundred years. A few days in which the population goes to the fairground, turning it into a real travelling city full of colour and fun for any outsider who wants to attend. ...

Business Tourism

Osuna has become a major congress centre in Andalusia and this does not happen by chance. There are many reasons that endorse the city and numerous appeals that attract every year a large number of companies to hold conventions and meetings in the location. It is one of the cities with better communications in west Andalusia, by road, rail and air. Apart from this transport system, Osuna has a complete accommodation infrastructure.

Visitors can choose from a wide range of accommodations in all categories. Likewise the same choice can be made when referring to the succulent dishes of Osuna's cuisine. However it is not all about work, there are also many leisure attractions to have a break after an exhausting working day. From breathing fresh air and practicing sports in nature reserves and protected areas to walking through its monumental historic centre.

Where to Sleep

Rest in the historic heart of Osuna, in any of its stately homes, or sleep just outside the town near its rich and beautiful natural landscapes, where you can practice a wide range of activities. These are just some of the accommodation possibilities, suiting all tastes and pockets.

Where to Eat

The monumental whitewashed streets of Osuna are the ideal setting for tasting typical local dishes outdoors, taking advantage of the warm temperatures throughout the year. A rich and varied gastronomy in which it is worth highlighting the "ardoria", a local variety of "salmorejo", "cocido ursaonés", "repapalillas" made with cod and stewed cardoons. All these dishes dressed with excellent local olive oil. As for confectionery it is also worth highlighting the ancient "Gachas de San Arcadio", the "Aldeanas" and the specialty of the Monastery of la Encarnación.

Crafts and Confectionery

Osuna has a great history of crafts tradition, fruit of decades of work by great masters. The ceramics of the city bases its decorative elements on the eighteenth-century Sevillian tiles that decorate patios and cloisters of monasteries and convents. The works of glass, wrought iron, resin, esparto or cordovan are good examples of Osuna's artisan mastery. Local oil serves as key ingredient for both convent pastries and the many confectioner's shops located in Osuna.
